

IMSLEC ACCREDITED TEACHING-LEVEL COURSES BY STATE

The International Multisensory Structured Language Education Council (IMSLEC) accredits training courses that prepare individuals in the use of multisensory structured language education programs. The training provided by IMSLEC accredited courses meets the requirements set by the Academic Language Therapy Association (ALTA) to sit for the Alliance National Registration Exam and therefore, for membership in ALTA at both the therapy level (CALT) and the teaching level (AALT). For more information on IMSLEC visit www.imslec.org or call 972-774-1772. Visit www.altaread.org for more information on ALTA.

Teaching-level training provided by the following courses prepares individuals for the teaching level (AALT) in ALTA upon passage of the Alliance National Registration Exam. A list of therapy-level courses by state is also available on a separate fact sheet.

Description	The Spalding Method is a multisensory language arts approach effective with K–8 general and special education students. Two post-graduate courses drawn from the text, “The Writing Road to Reading” by Romalda Spalding, are designed for general and special education teachers; administrators; and curriculum, speech, reading, and dyslexia specialists. The initial 45-hour course, Integrated Language Arts 1, emphasizes spelling, the foundation for both reading and writing. ILA 2 (45 hours) emphasizes comprehension and composition and reinforces spelling and grammar. Diagnostic procedures are refined in ILA 2 to enable participants to adjust instruction to meet all students’ needs. Spalding Certified Teacher Instructors are available for onsite follow up
